

Kelly Ussery-Kronhaus, MD, FAAFP

Family Medicine Residency Program Director, Hackensack Meridian Ocean University Medical Center

Vice Chair, Department of Family Medicine, Hackensack Meridian School of Medicine

Assistant Professor of Family Medicine, Hackensack Meridian School of Medicine

Dr. Ussery-Kronhaus is a Family Physician, founding Residency Program Director at Hackensack Meridian Ocean University Medical Center and founding Vice Chair of the Department of Family Medicine and Hackensack Meridian School of Medicine. She is part of the founding faculty of Hackensack Meridian School of Medicine and worked to develop the basic science and clerkship curriculum. Dr. Ussery-Kronhaus's research interests are Competency-Based Medical Education, Learning Networks, and Professional Development in Medical Education. She has been invited to participate in pilot projects for Competency-Based Medical Education, and she has led several national initiatives with the Alliance of Independent Medical Centers. Dr. Ussery-Kronhaus is passionate about the future of healthcare and the clinical and leadership development of our next-generation physicians.